Amid the mystical beauty of Taos is El Monte Sagrado Living Resort and Spa™, which offers a secluded sanctuary in harmony with the earth. This resort is adorned with exquisite accommodations inspired by Native American and global culture and a dramatic art collection graced by world-famous artists. At the heart of El Monte Sagrado is a celebration of the artistic spirit surrounded by the culture and inspiration of Taos, making it the perfect home to a masterpiece all its own—the Grand Bohemian Gallery. This unique gallery showcases works by regional and internationally recognized artists designed to inspire the collector in all of us. Subject matter is varied and includes original and rare pieces of artwork ranging from oil paintings, glass, wood, contemporary jewelry, bronze sculpture and unique gift items.

Exclusive to the Grand Bohemian Gallery are French colorist-expressionist artist Jean Claude Roy and famed Italian artist Stefano Cecchini, best known for his depictions of exotic wildlife and African portraits. Other featured artists include Ali Launer, Amber Higgins, Elizabeth St. Hilaire Nelson, Douglas

Music also is a key element for this distinctive property. Monthly concerts take place in the gallery, which provides a beautiful and intimate atmosphere that connects the audience with performers. In addition, artist workshops and exhibitions are offered frequently. Throughout the month of May, El Monte Sagrado's Grand Bohemian Gallery will feature Douglas Johnson's exquisite gouache paintings depicting the heaven and the earth of northern New Mexico.
